ARTS & HUMANITIES COUNCIL ANNOUNCES NEW EDUCATION & COMMUNICATIONS MANAGER

Bainbridge Island, Wash. - February 13, 2013 – The Bainbridge Island Arts and Humanities Council welcomes their new Education and Communications Manager, Kathy Haskin.

Kathy has a diverse background in education, communications, event facilitation and non-profit leadership. Having published three curriculum guides, education is at the heart of every position Kathy has taken on, from Ohio to New York, Wyoming, and now Bainbridge Island.

“Kathy is deeply aware that communication efforts, whether they are through social or traditional media, community events or ongoing dialogues, are at their core, educational activities. We are thrilled to have her on our team,” said Barbara Sacerdote, Executive Director, Arts & Humanities Council.

Kathy and her husband John brought their family to Bainbridge just over four years ago. “Of all the places we have lived, we find Bainbridge to be a special place, a beautiful expression of its people and community,” Kathy says.

Kathy’s focus during the coming months will be on the Arts & Humanities Council’s award-winning Arts in Education program, as well as its full spectrum of events and community programs aimed at nurturing Bainbridge Island’s arts and cultural opportunities.

“I am looking forward to communicating our mission and efforts as we work together with local artists, cultural organizations, businesses, educators and students to create an environment where the arts and humanities flourish.”

About the Arts & Humanities Council

The Arts & Humanities Council mission is to create an environment on Bainbridge Island in which the arts and humanities flourish by enriching, inspiring and supporting creative professionals and their audiences, and by connecting young people to creative ways of thinking through powerful arts programming. Our four program areas are: 1) Services to Bainbridge creative professionals and cultural organizations, 2) Arts Education in the Bainbridge Island and North Kitsap School Districts, 3) Grantmaking and 4) Cultural programming and planning.
